At St. Leonard's Pool, the Women's 220 yard race told British sportsmen they had a brand-new white hope for an Olympic title.

She's 16 year old Cathie Gibson of Motherwell. Strutting ahead, she showed watchers that eight stone of Scottish whippersnapper can swim faster than some of us can run.

Time for the 220 yards was 2 minutes 29.2 seconds - a proud day for Cathie Gibson and for her native Motherwell.

If you're broke after your holiday - take a tip from American millionaire Lee Chertok. He is over here to make another.
