

CANADA REVEALS ATOMIC SECRETS

A hundred miles up river from Ottawa lies Canada's atomic Research Station. Built in 1943 it's location has been kept a top national secret. These are the first pictures ever taken in the £4,000,000 plant. In laboratories behind 2ft thick walls American, British and Canadian scientists explore new fields of Nuclear knowledge. Whether the atomic bomb is still an exclusive American secret the world does not know, the peoples guess is that the scientists of other nations have moved with the times since Hiroshima. Today these scientists are concentrating on the benefits to be gained by atomic research. For new discoveries will attack an enemy far greater than war, cancer, T.B., Heart Ailments almost all known diseases. Radioactive isotopes made here will provide medical men with their most valuable tools since the invention of X rays. Atomic research may yet lead to a new era in human progress.
