

PLANE HITS TROLLEY BUS

Crashing in the high street of Burnt Oak, Middlesex, an Air Force plane strikes a block of flats, a trolleybus, a lamp standard - and finally a factory wall. A car is pinned under the wreckage.

Two Air Force officers are killed, nine people are injured. Immediate and courageous aid from bystanders and factory workers prevents the plane from bursting into flames. But for their prompt action the tragedy would be a greater one.