Not so rosy are the prospects of the City of London's parliamentary standing. The Senior Sheriff exercising a 400 year old right goes to the Commons accompanied by the Wig rememberancer and the Junior Sheriff to petition against the new electoral bill. Under it the City would be split up among other boroughs and its M.P.s abolished.

Liverpool's tram drivers are the first to be caught in their students strive to raise funds for the hospitals of merseyside. Payment in cash is preferred but payment in kind is not scorned. Even the fishmongers offering helps out a kerbside breakfast. The Adelphi hotel was stormed, nothing is sacred today for the target is £10,000 every little helps even a policemen's buttons.
