WORLD AT YOUR ELBOW

Croydon's By-election catches the political eye of Britain. Attacking the Conservative seat is Harold Nicholson of the socialist ranks, ex MP and former junior Minister.

The 600 odd votes beat the labour candidate in the last election and with 12,000 new electors Nicholson's hopes are delicately balanced. An experienced politician he seems to know all the answers.

Canvassing briskly is the Liberal party's man - much publicised pathfinder Bennett. With 40,000 women electors whose votes are unpredictable Bennett aided by his wife, has a persuasive manner -

Bennet talking to housewife

Defending the constituency is Frederick Harris 32 year old local man. Youngest of the candidates Harris, complete with oversized rosette, faces stiff opposition. But he is confident that he will be Croydon's new MP. There is little doubt that the housewives vote will be the deciding factor. Promising to be the liveliest voting contest for sometime North Croydon and the police enjoy its national limelight.
