

IPSSO

F.B.I. dinner to Nobel prize winners.

- 1. M.S. Attlee arriving. 13 > 11
- 2. M.S. Morrison arriving. 12 + 4
- ~~3. C.U. Morrison 6~~
- 4. M.S. John Andersen. 7
- 5. C.U. Florence Hancock. 7 4
- ~~6. M.S. Florence Hancock 8~~
- ~~7. M.S. Florence Hancock 8~~
- 8. C.U. John Strachey. 9 9
- 9. Speech by Attlee.

ORIG. TIN. 22 C

68

To pay tribute to Nobel prize winners Sir Edward Appleton & Sir Robert Robinson the Prime Minister

The Prime Minister, member of the government, leader of union & industrial leaders put aside all thoughts of wage pegging, profit slashing and unite to pay tribute to such agreement on honouring two British scientists, Sir Edward Appleton & Sir Robert Robinson, 1947 Nobel prize winners for physics & chemistry respectively.

Speaking of the scientific ~~importance~~ ^{importance} of the ~~work~~ ^{work} of Sir Edward Appleton & Sir Robert Robinson, Mr. Attlee, ~~emphasizing~~ ^{emphasizing} the growing importance of science in industry said that it forgetting current wrangles about ~~what~~ ^{what} wage pegging & profit slashing is the best solution to the ~~present~~ ^{present} crisis. Mr. Attlee & other members of the government ~~unite with~~ ^{unite with} trades union & industrial leaders to know how men who symbolize a profession which ~~has~~ ^{has} could perhaps provide a solution to the present crisis of whose work he earned them the 1947 Nobel prizes for physics & chemistry. Speaking of the ~~importance~~ ^{importance} of the work of Sir Edward Appleton & Sir Robert Robinson the Prime Minister said that

Attlee's Speech at F.B.I. Dinner.

48-27 P5801
UN 1928 D

'It is a great honour for this country to have two British scientists in one year that have been awarded Nobel prizes to remind us of the continued efforts of this country in the field of science and is altogether fitting that tribute ~~XXXXXXXX~~ should be paid to them by industry because science and industry are ever more closely linked, and so much of our future prosperity depends on the closest relationship between them.