WORLD AT YOUR ELBOW

Wisconsin

Election fever grips America's midwestern state of Wisconsin. Candidates for nomination by the republicans (the Tory party of the U.S.A) get out their posters, flags and banners. Wisconsin-born General MacArthur is left far behind by Senator Stassen, who's publicity-men make a whirlwind campaign.

Governor Dewey fails to improve his chances by a personal appearance.

Balloting is heavy. Defeat in this particular state in 1944 led Wendell Wilkie to quit the Presidential race. Stassen comes out on top as the Republican Elector's choice and hurries off to stump Nebraska.

Florida

As if sole water skiing isn't crazy enough, at the Dixie Tournament in Florida, champions Trammell Pickett and Martha Mitchell are doing it in doubles. For the first time, even in America, here's a double jump on a single set of skis.

Zigzagging through the wake of a speed boat is a cross between a ballerina doing her stuff and a barrow boy dodging the cops.

New - long distance ski jumping from a five foot board. Some set records, but all make a big splash.

Europe

Flag bedecked Bogota welcomes delegates of twenty one American republics to their sixth international conference. United States Secretary George Marshall carries to the assembly the decision of His Government on foreign economic aid. Europe is to come first. The claims of the Latin-American states must wait. Colombian President Mariano Perez moves the opening address. Within 24 hours of the first meeting revolution sweeps the country; the Government is overthrown and the Conference is stillborn.
