 "For we shall never forget the gallantry, we shall never forget the heroism and the bravery of that core of citizens of Britain and the Commonwealth, who during those days when you were standing as the solitary Knight of defence of western christendom. They, we will never forget and may the spirits of those who are dead and the convictions of those who are alive move us closely together so that in the future we may march arm-in-arm and shoulder-to-shoulder as we have in the past. On this the future hangs."
