

WHO'S FOR THE CUP?

Cup thrills are back, as well as the shocks. At Barnsley, a white-shirted Blackpool (with evergreen Stanley Matthews as dashing as ever) play exhibition stuff against Barnsley's Second Division team and think they can win this game standing still. But the Yorkshiremen are not overawed by the occasion, and with Mortensen here missing a narrow chance, they fight back well against last year's finalists. Matthews - at his trickiest - is the main thorn in their side.

With no score at half time both sides threw everything into the attack. At first, Barnsley are on the move, and then, just as suddenly, Blackpool's front line spells danger.

From a long lob by Eddie Shimwell, Stan Mortensen gets the ball, and it's a goal!

With Blackpool having scraped into the next round, let's look in at Highbury, where Arsenal meet Whiteshirted Tottenham in a de-or-die London Derby. The Gunners (criticised by many as an old mens' team) are out to show their neighbourly rivals that last year's championship was no fluke. Their mercurial winger Ian Macpherson only just misses to score in the opening minute.

The Gunners' star is little Jimmy Logie, No. 8, already hailed as a new Alex James. With Don Roper, he makes a speedy right wing and it's from that side that Arsenal score their first goal - Macpherson heading it home.

Help-yourself-tea revitalises thrill-soaked fans at half-time and then they are off again! Winger Cox starts a lone Tottenham attack - but Arsenal's rearguard is solid.

Cox again! His fierce drive is the nearest thing yet to an equaliser. But in a storming rally, the fast moving Gunners make certain of the issue. Here it is - Don Roper bangs homea Logie pass - and Arsenal are a step nearer to Wembley.
