

MIDST CIRCUS THRILLS PARIS

Paris - city of song, laughter and romance - adds a new attraction for tourists. You pay your 10 francs and - voila! - a ringside seat at the smallest show on earth, Monsieur Robert's tame-flea Circus. And if you don't possess binoculars, a magnifying-glass'll do.

What a show - Cinderella and the Forty Fleas!

What thrills! Prince Charming himself, in the Fairy Coach - no, he's changed his mind, he's coming by taxi instead. And so to the Ball, the Jitterbug's Benefit.

Just when everything's going fine, pandemonium breaks loose. (That's Prince Charming gone west). The fleas get mad and the audience scratches for dear life. But the show must go on. Next time, don't forget the D.B.T.
