

49/2

ACHESON ANNOUNCES ATLANTIC PACT

The Atlantic Pact Nations held a final conference before Dean Acheson announces from Washington the details of the historic alliance. Dutch Ambassador Van Kleffens is among the diplomatic representatives who helped shape a document that binds together the Western world. Credit for this grand design must go to Dean Acheson, who (aided by Britain's Sir Oliver Franks and Canadian Ambassador Wrong) formed eight sovereign nations into a unifying alliance.