

- X A button on the dashboard opens the garage doors of Rendezview --
- Navy veteran Arnold Forsman's pushbutton-paradise home at San Rafael, California. This electrical Eden is run by a hundred and thirty-six switches, forty-four motors -- and a meter.
- X Want to open a can? Just push a button. And when it's open the top doesn't fall in. A magnet holds onto it.
- X Want water in the pot. Just push a button. The water comes right to the stove.
- X When ashes drop in this housewife's heaven, why you . . . yes, just push a button. Oscar, the radar-vacuum, will clean up the mess.
- X If just sitting around gets tiring, why you go to bed. Oscar will put himself away.
- WANT THE BEDS MOVED? JUST PUSH A BUTTON
- X Now, if there was only a button to stop the meter!
