

SPORTS

Youngson Baruch

The National AAU Boxing Tournament reaches a walloping climax at Boston Garden. In the heavyweight class, Gilmore Newkirk, in stripped trunks, from New York meets Rex Layne of Salt Lake City. These fighters for glory not gold have had a long struggle up the ladder and now, in the final, they give it all they've got. The two heavies match blow for blow with Layne, a twenty-year-old sugar beet farmer, gradually gaining the edge.

Here's the clincher. Newkirk goes down under the blows of the triumphant Rex Layne.

Honolulu's DeLopes Oliver, in white trunks, takes on Frank McClendon of Cleveland in the hundred and seventy-five pound bout. There's not a second of stalling in this thriller before ten thousand fans. Oliver helps Hawaii to second place team honors by chalking up the championship the decisive way - with a clean KO.

Oakland's Maurice Harper, nearest camera, tangles with defending champ Eugene Linscott of Grand Rapids in the most exciting bout of the evening. The hundred-and-forty-seven pound Harper, who is a schoolboy and only