| 6. | C.U. | Churchill speaking: | 'The difference between Socialism and Communism is not one of principle or theory but one of method. The Socialists pursue their aims by constitutional methods, as is their right, and sincerely but vainly hope to preserve individual liberty. They are our fellow countrymen, however misguided, even though Mr. Bevan calls us vermin. We must regard them as brothers, with whom, yes certainly, we must regard the other half of our fellow countrymen as brothers, apart from their politics, and realise that we have much in common with them. The communists on the other hand are the lackeys and the tools of a foreign power, seeking the ruin of Britain and its subordination to the decrees of the oligarchy in Moscow. (Applause). | 103 | Jordan |

| 11. | C.U. | Churchill continues: | 'We have the fate of Czechoslovakia before our eyes. That should be studied. We are glad that Socialists and Labour men should fight Communism. We are glad that it should be a common cause for all of us. | 27 | Jordan |
| 12. | | Dubbing shot of crowd. | | 5 | Baynes |
| 13. | S.C.U. | Churchill continues. | 'If we sink through Socialism into moral decline and collapse, not only will our own suffering be intense | | |
