

49/67UNLUCKY CAMPBELL JUST MISSES RECORD

The weather breaks at Coniston Water, to allow Bluebird a crack at the world record. Mrs. Daphne Campbell radios for a last-minute report on course conditions, and husband Donald makes the first run.

A time-keeper checks at the mile-post, and Donald roars out on the second run; his aim, to better the hundred-and-forty-one point-seven-four mile-an-hour record set up by his father 10 years ago.

His wife, also time-keeping, anxiously awaits the final result. A first check suggests that Donald has done it - but later the bitter blow comes. He'll have to try again. Better luck, next time.
