COMBINED OPS BRING D-DAY TO HAMPSHIRE

Zero hour on Eastney beach! The Royal Marines invade! Assault boats breach the enemy's defences and it's D-Day all over again. This time, it's staged for the benefit of officer-students at the Staff College, who, on this Hampshire Beach, find a miniature war all laid on for them. All the paraphernalia of the modern Army swings into action.

Storming in to support the Marines come 500 army and navy men. Their task is to consolidate the bridgehead. Backbone of the raiding party lies in their amphibious tanks which, on beaching, drop their canvas screens and roll into battle.

The only thing missing to make it quite realistic - a couple of atom bombs!
