

VISHINSKY GIVES A PARTY

Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky becomes all smiles as he helps ambassador and Mrs. Panyushkin play host at a Washington party, celebrating the 32nd anniversary of the Red Revolution. Diplomats from all the Atlantic Pact Nations forget there are such things as a cold war and Molotov cocktails and instead get amiable over tea - the Russian brand, of course - and dry martinis. Vishinsky said that friendship between East and West would wake up again - perhaps at a party like this.
