

'MISS BRITAIN' KEEPS FIT - TO MUSIC

To the Empire Pool from every corner of Britain come 2,000 girls - propounding "health and beauty." Banded together twenty years ago by Britain's first 'perfect' woman Prunella Stack, they've come to town for a special festival display.

Noble aim of this fine body of women is to show the uninitiated that health and beauty is another way of saying calisthenics. Poise and elegance - the poetry of motion expressed by splendid specimens of British womanhood.

The festival is the climax to months of training to perfect these final routines. The amazing precision of their rhythmic movements delights the thousands who have come to see a perfect performance.
