

NO LACE, THIS YEAR

What Miss Gussie Moran wears on the tennis court makes news, it seems. She's come for another crack at Wimbledon, but nobody seems interested in her tennis form. Last year Gussie had lace where a lot of people thought it shouldn't be, so the world's just dying to know what she's got where she oughtn't to have it this year. So, to a waiting world, Pathe reveals Mm! Rather more than we expected.

Ah! Here we are: "Temptress!" A French creation in white silk chiffon, pleats all over, with bloomer-type panties to match. Shades of Amelia Jenks Bloomer, that daring pioneer! who gave her name to that garment.

It's just a hundred years since Miss Bloomer gave her underwear to the world, which makes it a centenary, and of course that's why we give you this brief survey - or, should it be a survey of briefs?