

EDINBURGH HONOURS U. S. AMBASSADOR

Greeted by the Lord Provost, Sir Andrew Murray, and a Guard of Honour by the Highland Light Infantry, American Ambassador Lewis Douglas makes a formal inspection before receiving the Freedom of the City. It's a proud day for Scotland, and for Lewis Douglas - who is principal guest at Edinburgh's fourth International Festival of music and drama.

Divine worship at St. Giles Cathedral opens three weeks of ceremonies during which Scotland's capital becomes capital of the world's music. The visit of Mr. Douglas underlines the harmony that can - and should - exist between nations.
