AUSTRALIA WINS DAVIS CUP

The Golden Jubilee competition for the Davis Cup comes to the boiling point when America's Ted Schroeder and Gardner Mulley, in near court, meet Australia's John Bromwich and Frank Sedgman. It's an excited crowd at Forest Hills as Sedgman serves. If the U.S. team, in far court, fails to win, the coveted cup will leave America for the first time in four years.

This hard-won point goes to the Aussies.

Australia's twenty-two-year-old Sedgman serves. He's teamed with Bromwich, member of the squad from down under that won eleven years ago. Together, youngster and veteran maintain command of the net with a rhythmic, dancing, on-your-toes game - so characteristic of top tennis.

In the fifth set, Bromwich serves match point - AND THE AUSTRALIANS WIN! America surrenders top place in the tennis world as Australia goes on to take four points out of five and walk away with the Davis Cup.
