BUENOS AIRES

President Peron leads Argentina's celebration of San Martin Day. In the reviewing stand he greets his wife and the President of Paraguay, Argentina's neighbour. General San Martin, one of the great patriots of South America, died in France one-hundred years ago after helping to liberate Latin-America from Spanish rule.

Today Peru, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay and Argentina pay homage to General San Martin.

ROME

For the second time 15-year-old Giulietta has the officials of Rome Zoo excited. They're expecting another baby elephant any time now. Two years ago she gave birth to a daughter, Roma, who is a big girl now.

As Giulietta prepares she is watched by vets. ready to help her. And here's the baby - Remo - weighing 270 pounds, 39 inches tall and with a 12-inch trunk ... and blue ribbons tell the world "It's a boy!"
