

"SHE WALES IN BEAUTY"

At Grosvenor House, Britain's footwear manufacturers put on a show to tempt the world. And here's how to be comfortable in ostrich feathers. It's good to know that, like so many other British products, our footwear finds great favour wherever soles are ticklish and toes tender. Here's an idea in gold - and they probably cost their weight in it! The things they say about shoes! The makers, that is. Here are 'dark green town shoes, with half-saddle flaring away from the waist of the shoe.'

Or, how about green hunting calf in the "Uptown Bouncer."

Bremer beetles - but that's enough about dogs, let's go to Paris for some frocks from Jacques Fath. This is "Canastra" ... but before you settle for it, look at the jewels you'll need - diamonds and emeralds.

For "Suite en Blanc" you can get away with just a few pearls.

"Giselle" is in white tulle - and so therefore is Sylvie, who's demonstrating.

"Le Bal" is white satin with gold-embroidered bodices.

And this is "Après le Bal" - but we won't go into that! Everyone knows what happens after the ball!
