

ROYAL VISITS IN SCOTLAND

Princess Margaret visits Bowerswell Memorial Home, Perth and with the Lord Prevest inspects new cottages built in the grounds. Already sixteen old people are living in the home, and the visit of the Princess makes a bright spot in their quiet lives.

At St. Andrews, the Queen, in the robes of a doctor of laws, attends a commemoration of the 500th anniversary of the first college in Scotland's first University.

At St. Salvator's College of St. Andrews University, after unveiling a war memorial window in the collegiate church, her Majesty enters the college buildings for a graduation ceremony.
