

LONDON

HOLIDAY FOR MICE

With hundreds of cats and kittens away at the Crystal Cat Show at Olympia, thousands of mice can play. What am I saying? These Siamese aristocrats probably never saw a mouse in their lives.

A first prize Blue Persian - and doesn't he know it! It's estimated there are eight million cats in Britain. Some cats have lovely tails, manx cats do without. Funny, eh? Well, this is what the cats see.

Over at the Zoo they have kittens of a different kind.

They're tiger triplets with a sad story that had the whole Zoo worried, but it ends happily. Now all eyes are on the cubs with their foster-mother. The 5-weeks-old triplets were abandoned by their real mother, Memsahib, so somebody said a word to Bessie. Now they're registered with Bessie and everything's fine.
