

PARIS'SUGAR RAY' K.O.s STOCK

At the Palais des Sports Sugar Ray Robinson, America's most colourful fighter and world welter-weight champion since 1946, meets Jean Stock, middleweight champion of France. For the first round Jean knows more or less what's happening, but in round 2 the fighting-machines really gets cracking.

In 121 professional fights Robinson has lost only one. Hard-hitting and clever, he's got everything.

It's scientific slaughter served out by a master and Stock hasn't a chance. There goes a right ... pretty near the kidney ... and Stock is down again.

And there goes the towel - Stock's had enough. Robinson's willing to fight anyone if the price is right; but, judging by what we've seen, the other guy ought to get the long end of the purse: he'll need it for repairs!
