

Blackpool v. Fulham

At Blackpool the fans are out in all their warpaint. The long and the short of it is that it's the first Cup quarter-final ever played there; even the Blackpool Duck's excited.

The last time Blackpool reached the last eight they beat Fulham in London, so this is a sort of return match, and as they kick-off all eyes watch to see how the last London club in the Cup will tackle the Matthews problem. And here's the wizard. He beats Lowe, but here comes Campbell storming to the rescue. Looks like being a bustling afternoon for Stanley. Now here's the ball going to skipper Johnstone. His shot beats Black but Joe Baccuzzi makes a brilliant but illegal save and it's a penalty for Blackpool.

Brown takes the kick - and it's a goal!

Here's Matthews again. A beautiful centre. Perry slams in a beauty but Baccuzzi saves again - this time legally.

And another Baccuzzi save. What a tragedy that 'hands' was!

Now Campbell's up against Matthews. In desperation he grabs the wily wizard.

Starting the second half one down, Fulham try hard to equalise but Farm makes a fine save.

At the other end Stanley is still busy. But there's no more scoring and by the only goal Blackpool are through.
