TWICKENHAM

ENGLAND WIN CALCUTTA CUP

Threatened with the wooden spoon, England are not fancied by the experts. Under medical advice the King is not present as the Queen and Princess Margaret take their place, and Scotland kick-off into the wind. England, with no victory this season, tackle a Scottish team who made the fine Welsh side look silly a little while back. On the other hand, Scotland haven't won at Twickenham since 1938. And here's an England movement started by Towell. The ball works out to Williams but Dalgleish dashes up to make a splendid tackle.

Now Scotland get going. A long kick forward but Shuttleworth (Army and Blackheath serum) pounds on it and saves a dangerous situation.

Now play's round the Scottish goal. The English forwards are outplaying the Scottish. A Scottish heel goes ungathered and White picks up on the run. Can he get through? Yes! He sells a dummy and he's over! England have scored!

The newly-capped Gloucester full-back Hook takes the kick and it's over - England five, Scotland nil.

Resuming after the interval still five points down, Scotland try hard to even up. Cameron passes to Inglis. From Inglis it goes to Sloan and thence to Scott who dives over but the referee has whistled up and it's no try.

Playing into the wind and driving rain is slowing England, and Scotland are desperate. Fourteen-stone stand-off Cameron gets the ball and beefs for the line. And now Scotland can tie. But it's a difficult angle for Inglis and England win a fine game.
