

KNITWEAR FASHIONS

Constance had a little lamb
Which she herself has knitted
And thus she is both budget-wise
And fash'nably out-fitted.

The moral to the rhyme, as you're about to see, is that you can knit yourself into the height of style for almost any occasion. For instance, take these handsome handknit creations, designed by Mimi Pearce and modeled by Connie and Pat at New York's fashionable Carlyle Hotel. Pat's two-piece handknit dress features a chess motif.

Connie's, of nautical design, is crossed with red stripes and gold buckles. Out of the mirror, like Alice, come wonderland fashions for cocktail time. Connie's off-the-shoulder handknit gown has a pleated effect framing the neckline and on the skirt. Pat's is made of hand-crocheted black and gold daisies. It ought to be a dressy winter for every woman with styles like these only as far from reach as the knitting bag.
