U.S. SENATE PROBE CRIME

The Senate crime probe, ferreting out connections between New York political leaders and alleged gambling boss Frank Costello, hears Senator Tobey quiz a reluctant Costello on his ideas of citizenship.....

Then New York Firemen's Association head John Crans makes the hearing's most sensational charge -- against former Mayor William O'Dwyer, who had denied under oath ever receiving money from Crans.....

Committee Counsel Halley questions Crans on payments totalling fifty-five thousand to then Deputy Fire Commissioner James Moran.

The Committee, under Tennessee's Senator Hefauver, moves on to Washington in its job of alerting the public on ties between crime and politics.
