Truman seated says: - I have thought long and hard about this question of extending the war in Asia. I've discussed it many times with the ablest military advisers in this country. I believe with all my heart that the course we are following is the best course. You may ask why can't we take other steps to punish the aggressor, why don't we bomb Manchuria and China itself, why don't we assist the Chinese Nationalist troops to land on the mainland of China. If we were to do these things we would be running every great risk of starting a general war. If that were to happen we would have brought about the exact situation we are trying to prevent. If we were to do these things we would be embroiling a vast conflict on the continent of Asia, and our task would be come immeasurably more difficult all over the world. What would aid the ambitions of the Kremlin better, than for our military forces to be committed to a full scale war with Red China. I believe that we should try to limit the war in Korea for these vital reasons, first to make sure that the precious lives of our fighting men are not wasted, to see that the security of our country and the free world is not needlessly jeopardized, and to prevent a third world war.
