U.S. RETAIN WALKER CUP

At Birkdale, Willie Turnesa receives the Walker Cup for America; but that's only half the story. Two down on the foursomes, Britain fought back. Amateur champion Frank Stranahan of America went down to Carr of Dublin and the hopes of the 12-thousand crowd soared. Here's Stranahan putting.

Carr held out to win two and one.

The great Willie Turnesa, four up at halfway, lost to A.T. Kyle. Two down on the foursomes, Britain needed to win five-and-a-half points in the singles. Then White beat Coo and the crowd was excited. Caldwell held Paddeck of Ohio to halve their match. This was the key match. If we'd won we were there with a chance to tie.

There wasn't much Morgan of Wales could do about it.

Chapman beat him fairly easily. In bunkers and on the greens the Americans had the edge on us, and so, taking the rough with the smooth, they won the Walker Cup in this its 30th anniversary year. In golf, you've got to sink your putts to be in the swim.
