HOT NEWS

In Philadelphia, a U.S. Naval officer demonstrates a new 'hot suit' designed for fighting fire of intense heat. The breathing apparatus, which is strapped to the chest, works like lungs and is protected by the hot-suit's hood.

High octane spirit (such as aircraft use) gives a realistic test. The heat quickly reaches more than two-thousand degrees but the volunteer firemen walk about unconcerned. The new suit is made of five layers of asbestos, glass, flannel and aluminium. With it, rescue squads can walk to the heart of a blazing plane and save the lives of those trapped in it.

Princeton

At Princeton, Professor Einstein receives David Ben-Gurion during the Israeli Premier's tour of America. Israel seeks a five-hundred-million dollar loan. That's a lot to us, but to Einstein, who thinks in millions, it's just another figure - which brings us to Lauren Bacall, holidaying with husband Humphrey Bogart in Venice.

Venice

As a change from being shot Bogart does a bit of shooting. But no-one's scared till he tries to paddle his own canoe.

That's better! He's got the Venetian taxi under control; but, if you were there, would you swap places with the driver?
