NEWS IN FLASHES

There's a distinguished gathering at Lancaster House because - a little bird tells us - from Clarence House next door Princess Elizabeth is coming to meet overseas visitors to London's Fashion Fortnight ... No wonder there's a record number of buyers! Very encouraging for Sir Hartley Shawcross, new President of the Board. But you wouldn't think such a stogy department would be concerned with lovely things like this. There will be a number of parades for the representatives of 45 countries who've come to see our latest style. Some people have nice jobs! For Princess Elizabeth - who was in mushroom-pink crepe - it must have been a pleasant change from some of the many items on her busy programme.

From New York, Miss Margaret Truman, the President's daughter, sails for Europe, accompanied by two Secret Service men. Posing for pictures with her mother, Miss Truman tells reporters that she will do no singing.

It isn't often we see a giraffe fawn. This is Trine with her father and mother. She was just a week old when these pictures were taken at Hagenbeck's Zoo, Hamburg.

Trine is all leggy now, but when she's grown up she'll be able to work up to over 30-miles-an-hour. But as she'll always be living in a built up area, she won't get much chance to prove it!
