

INDO-CHINA

FRENCH FOIL HED ATTACK

Thirty-five miles from Hanoi a rescue column counter-attacks a strong rebel force which has over-run a French strong-point.

Now the troops go in to re-take the mountain post where Lieutenant de Lattre de Tassigny, son of the French Commander-in-Chief was in command.

Here's the final assault. Strong rebel forces attacked in this area to capture the rich rice harvest. This post controlled the route relief forces must take.

Among the dead is de Lattre de Tassigny ... but the strong-point is recaptured ... the road through re-opened to France's ceaseless war against outnumbering rebels.

As the tricolore flies once again the villagers return from their hiding. Robbed and harried by the rebels, for the moment at least they are safe but for how long?