PERSIA

U.S. AID IF ---

Tehran. The Shah of Persia and his wife leave the hospital where he has just had his appendix removed. Prime Minister Dr. Mossadeq is one of the many dignitaries who wait outside the hospital to congratulate their sovereign on his recovery.

Meanwhile, 4,000 angry Iranians demonstrate outside Parliament. The leader of a religious sect - incites the crowd against the English.

Shams Ganatabadi calls down the curse of heaven on the heads of the judges in the Hague. Not even Dr. Fatima, vice-president of the Council feels very comfortable - and I don't blame him.

In Dr. Mossadeq's bedroom American Ambassador Henry F. Grady delivers a message from President Truman, one more effort to avert complete collapse.
