BASEBALL - R.A.F. V. U.S.A.F.

Now this is where I'm licked. That's Lord Tedder and the U.S. Air Force; this is the R.A.F. team. We're at the White City: it's baseball and Lord Tedder pitches the first ball. But from now on as the R.A.F. pitcher lets go, your guess is as good as mine.

Basically it's rounders with a difference - but what a difference! Each side has nine innings. Now it's the R.A.F.'s turn. The pitcher lets go a snorter and the R.A.F. takes evasive action. Now for the real stuff. "Jones knocks a low inside pitch on a line drive to left centre, rounds first and goes sliding into second with a double." (I got that from the hand-out). Maybe it is wrong - but there's no doubt this is out and that looks like the end of the game, because everybody's packing up.
