

QUEBEC FETES THE PRINCESS

Welcomed by Monsieur Duplessis, Premier of Quebec Province, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh begin their 18,000 mile tour. They drive to Parliament buildings in Canada's oldest city. The people of Quebec are mostly of French origin but they're as British as the next where loyalty comes in.

Like Australia, each Canadian province is self-governing within the Dominion. Quebec is a fine example of how people of one race can live happily with those of another and still keep their old traditions. In the Council Chamber Princess Elizabeth signs the Golden Book.

Now it's farewell to Premier Duplessis and on to Laval University. There's a heavy 12-hour schedule ahead of the Royal couple.

It's name dating back to the first Bishop of Quebec nearly 300 years ago, Laval celebrates the centenary of its royal charter next year. Monseigneur Roy, Archbishop of Quebec, welcomes them to the University of which he is Chancellor. After a short visit Princess Elizabeth leaves for the Citadel.

It's not quite 200 years since General Wolfe stormed these heights of Abraham after a hard struggle with the French and so led to the birth of the great Dominion we know as Canada. Today, a young princess visits the people to whom she will one day be Queen and captures the heart of all Canadians.

2-588401

QUEBEC METS THE PRINCESS.

RB/GF

Welcomed by Monsieur Duplessis, Premier of Quebec Province, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh begin their 18,000 mile tour of Canada in her oldest city, as they drive to Parliament buildings. The 21 people of Quebec are mostly of French origin but they're as British as the next where loyalty comes in.

UP

SG. 9.

Like Australia, each Canadian province is self-governing within the Dominion. Quebec is a fine example of how people of one race can live happily with those of another and still keep their old traditions. In the Council Chamber Princess Elizabeth signs the Golden Book.

UP

SG. 16.

Now it's farewell to Premier Duplessis and on to Laval University. There's a tight 12-hour schedule ahead of the Royal couple and no time to waste.

UP

SG. 20.

It's name dating back to the first Bishop of Quebec nearly 300 years ago, Laval celebrates the centenary of its royal charter next year. Monseigneur Roy, Archbishop of Quebec, welcomes them to the University of which he is Chancellor. After a short visit Princess Elizabeth leaves for the Citadel.

UP

SG. 26.

It's not quite 200 years since James Wolfe captured Quebec after a hard struggle with the French and so led to the birth of the great Dominion we know as Canada. To-day, a young princess visits the people to whom she will one day be Queen and captures the hearts of all Canada.