MOTOR SHOW - EARL'S COURT

In spite of everything, British car builders once again put on a show to make your mouth water. The Vauxhall features a luggage boot that opens by press-button and lifts at the touch of a finger. In fact, everything's made so easy that you've no excuse for not having a car - except that you can't get one. Here's a nippy little Fraser-Nash, with a petrol-tank where you can watch operations - under the front mud-guard. Sensation of the show is the new Austin 7, long-delayed successor to the famous Baby that made nearly everyone a motorist. But of course, there's the Daimler if you want to do without something really expensive.

The new Berkeley Caravan has a sun roof. It's a two-decker de luxe job. Costs quite a bit, of course, but look what you get for your money! Even more revealing is the X-Ray Hillman Minx exhibit. Don't ask us how it's done. Go to Earl's Court and see for yourself.
