NEWS IN FLASHES

All over the country they're finishing off the zebras in quick time to save some of the 5,000 killed on the roads every year. Plastic material is used to make the marks lasting. From October 31st Uncle Belisha's job is taken over. Wherever the black-and-white markings run, those who walk have absolute right of way. There'll be no talking beacon there to cry Halt, but all vehicles must stop to let the pedestrian cross.

To pay last tribute to Liaquat Ali Khan, their murdered Prime Minister, some half-a-million Pakistanis. Shocked and sorrow-stricken, they shuffle the few paces past the body of the man who had done so much for them. Five miles they have walked through the dust and heat for this brief moment. And in their deep sorrow there is mingled fear, like a lost people wondering where next to look for such a wise leader. Today few men command the prestige and influence Liaquat Ali Khan earned in the new state. To these, his people, he was Pakistan.

In Kennington Park, British light-weight champion Tommy McGovern of Bermondsey gets into shape for his fight with Roy Ankarah. Tommy won his title when he finished off stablemate Billy Thompson in 45 seconds. Glasgow Against him, Roy Ankarah is fighting out of his weight; but if he wins, the Empire feather champion is after Arthur King's Empire title, so this looks like being a crackerjack match.
