

MR. EDEN ON OUR POLICY

Taking over the Foreign Office with a formidable programme of problems concerning World Peace, Mr. Eden outlines his plans for peace:

"I want to start by reducing the existing tension between East and West, and then I want to take certain of the specific problems and solve them, problems that now divide the world. I believe in starting with the smaller problems and moving on to the greater. The peace we seek is one based on the ideals of the United Nations, on tolerance and goodwill between nations so that men can live their lives without fear. We want our relations with all people to be based on consent and free understanding, and we believe that we have the experience to make this ideal a reality. That is the objective I have set myself, to win a lasting peace through perseverance and I believe that this is the object that all the British people have at heart."