NUN KILLED IN CANAL ZONE

Ordered by General Erskine, British troops take over part of Ismailia as terrorism reaches new heights. Key town on the vital Suez Canal, Ismailia became infested with snipers and saboteurs, with normal life almost coming to an end, till the troops moved in.

Tanks make their first appearance in the town and troops begin a round-up of suspects in the Mohamed Ali section. Forty-one prisoners are brought in for examination.

At El Hamada men of the 1st Guards brigade make a big haul under command of Major-General Matthews and Brigadier Steele. After a skirmish, Egyptian police laid down their arms to show they weren't involved, but 150 prisoners were rounded up for questioning.

At Ismailia more or less open warfare broke out with terrorists following a bomb outrage. Fierce sniping developed in many parts with some mortar fire, and a bomb hidden by an orange-seller wrecked this R.A.F. truck.

Whilst our troops were engaged in one part of the town, a call for help came from St. Vincent Convent. When British soldiers arrived they found Sister Anthony dead, murdered by fanatics, as she pleaded with them for the safety of the children in the Convent's care.
