

INDIA SEES ECLIPSE

In Delhi, more than a million Hindus assemble for the eclipse festival to save the Sun which is being seized for punishment .. that's their explanation of the eclipse.

As the crowd makes its way to the river, beggars come into their own. The faithful must give alms as well as pray to make sure the sun is saved; but the gentleman with the snake is just cashing in; must be awfully hard to say "No" to a python! In the thick of it all cows walk where they will. To Hindus they are holy.

When they reach the Jumna, thousands immerse themselves in the sacred waters. Before the day is through more than a million will have washed away their own sins and the sun's. It may seem superstition, but one thing is certain ... always the sun is set free!
