

MURRAYFIELDSCOTLAND v. ENGLAND RUGBY

Scotland kick off at Murrayfield against England who play in white, and the Calcutta Cup match is on. At once England show their superiority. From a cross-kick by Agar, Winn secures and he's away ... he's through and England have scored within two minutes. Hall takes the not-too-difficult kick - and it's over. England five, Scotland nil. Scotland fight back and England find scoring difficult. Here's a Scottish move that looks promising ... the ball finally goes to Weatherstone and he's away like a flash ... he's almost through but he's brought down. And half-time comes with no further scoring. Resuming, England turn on the pressure. This annual battle between the oldest international opponents is always the match of the season.

From a line-out Evans gets the ball ... he bursts through and England have scored again.

Hullo! Evans is injured ... he's hurt his nose and will need attention. Hall failed with the kick, so it's England eight, Scotland nil. Now here comes England's third try! With the defence split by Winn, the ball goes to Woodward - and they'll never stop the 15-stone wing-three-quarter.

Collins failed with the kick and England led by eleven points. The lighter Scots forwards are finding it impossible to hold their own. A good tackle by Muir sets the ball loose.

England again. Now it's Kendall-Carpenter going through the shaken defence and England have scored again.

Hall converted to make it sixteen, nil; and later scored a drop goal, to make it nineteen. In Between Scotland scored their only try, and here's how it happened. A terrific scramble near the English line, then Johnstone forces through to make the final score nineteen to three.
