

IN BRAZIL a

A massive, twisted pile of wreckage marks the scene where two trains

b-2507101

crashed head-on near Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. One of them, a modern steel commuters' express, sheered through the wooden coaches of the other.

"5"

The trains plunged into each other at fifty miles per hour in the center of this bridge, when the coach train jumped its tracks. One hundred and

63

66

78

two people were killed, and two hundred were injured, in the worst railroad disaster the Western Hemisphere has ever seen. ~~seen~~ SEEN. P. 20.

(2)