

PELICANS IN ST. JAMES'S

A long London tradition is restored as six pelicans are decanted at St. James's Park to replace two who died there last year. The browns come from Texas, the whites from Pakistan. Ever since the days of Charles II there have been pelicans in St. James's. So it's a big moment as the newcomers land on Duck Island.

A peculiar bird is the Pelican, it's beak can hold more than it's extraordinary how much this bird can eat.
