

JET PLANE CRASH KILLS 3

At St. Peter's near Breadstairs, firemen and American soldiers search for the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Read in the wreckage of their home which was hit by an American Thunderjet fighter. With the pilot they were killed when the plane crashed soon after take off. Captain Fogarty's blazing plane hit this tree and ploughed through a bank building and the Reads' house after he had steered clear of Breadstairs. True to the code of the air, he gave his life in trying to save others. The exploding jet started several small fires and a number of people were injured. But good work by the firemen saved the village.
