

U.S. v. IRELAND BOXING

At the National Stadium, Dublin, America's Golden Gloves champions lost by six bouts to four to ten fighting Irishmen in their first appearance in a European ring. Milligan (dark vest) beat Vaughn of America on points (in the light welters) chiefly thanks to his clever left.

The decision in the welter event - Crotty (dark vest) against Acton of America - went to Crotty, to the surprise of many who thought Acton had won.

We'll finish this brief glimpse of an Irish triumph with a third Irish win. It's McNally of Ireland and Corvino beating the living daylights out of each other - or trying so to do! - in the bantams.

They failed to kill each other, but McNally got home on points.
