

Llandudno

CONGRESS DANCES

"Castle in the Air" and fun on the ground, as Associated British-Pathe mark the premiere of the new British comedy "Castle in the Air!" It's the high spot of the Conference's 'other business.'

Here's Bill Fielder with Hugh Owen, Chairman of the Council. And here is Anne Elton, entering the Palladium, Llandudno, where all the fun is to happen. And that's Bob Chestam being shown the way, just in case someone asks for his credentials! After him come Mr. and Mrs. Cattlin and Jess Yates. Outside there's a huge crowd for Llandudno's brightest night in years!

This is going to be another catalogue! Sorry, can't be helped! of names.

Macgregor Scott and Mr. Payne; wonder what's cooking? They'd better be careful - the place is stiff with Beefeeders, from the look of it. Now, Jane Hylton and Joan Dowling catching up with a bunch of friends they haven't seen since last time!

Bob Godfrey, followed by Charlie Brown and Colonel Theo Fligelstone.

That's right! Spots for C.J. Latta, here with Bill Fielder and Macgregor Scott. C.J.'s always the life and soul of a party.

Mr. and Mrs. Singleton and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor. Next we come to that well-known figure, Tom O'Brien.

Conference President Bill Speakman and Mrs. Speakman are followed by Mr. France.

Lady King and Mammy Gold - and how Bill Fielder gets around! He's nearly as 'everywhere' as those chaps we mentioned just now, who keep popping up all over the place - here's another!

Russell Roberts, Ted Hancock - and - it's that man again!

More spots and - blow me! - there he is again greeting Sandra Dorne, with Macgregor Scott! Somebody ought to tell the MCC - England could do with a Fielder like that! And don't look now, but I think another one of those chaps is due again. Which leads us to the prologue, a tribute to the Queen, in a brilliant pageant depicting an incident in the life of her illustrious ancestor, Elizabeth the First of England, in whose reign Britain first reached greatness.

Now come members of the Aladdin Ball. Must be a tie-up here somewhere with the Monogram film which Associated British recommend for Christmas! Or do you believe in fairies?

This is more like it. Hey - they're cutting the scenes much too short! Let's have another look! Thanks!

Well, isn't anybody going to help the poor girl? Apparently not: they're all dancing as though nothing's happened. Well, let's hope nothing has happened, anyway! Imagine it. After all that terrific hard work they've been doing, they can find the energy to do this, with the mercury outside calling for ice!

That's one way of taking a girl for a spin. Of course, she has to walk back as usual!

So far, nobody's complaining and everybody seems to be having a wonderful time!

If you recognize anybody, name him! There's such a bunch I can't attempt to pick them out. Besides, it's more fun picking them out yourselves!

Well, that's the end of the dancing, so on to the prize-giving, and here's Mr. Roberts to receive the first prize in the golf tournament. Do you know, we've heard a lot about the Cinema Exhibitors Association Conference, but so far we haven't seen a shot of anybody at work! And here's Mr. Toms collecting the runners-up prize. We used to have pictures of the delegates in full swing on the links. Somehow this year we didn't get around to that. We're not suggesting anything, but after the prize-giving there were -
FIREWORKS!

Piece de Resistance (which doesn't mean an usherette who knows her ABC) was a gentleman who just loved to play with fire!

And so back to the fireworks and the end of a brilliant evening which Llandudno and - we hope - all her important visitors will long remember!

Castle in the Air and fun on the ground, as Associated British-Pathe mark the premiere of the new British comedy Castle in the Air! It's the high spot of the Conference's 'other business'! Here's Bill Fielder with Hugh Owen, Chairman of the Council. And here is Anne Elton, entering the Paladium, Lansdowne, where all the fun is to happen. And that's Bob Cheetham being shown the way, just in case someone asks for his credentials!...After him come Mr. and Mrs. Cattlin and Jess Yates. (IMP) Outside there's a huge crowd for Lansdowne's brightest night in years!

Sc. 10

Here come Mr. and Mrs. Harngroves - this is going to be another catalogue!

Sorry, can't be helped!

Sc. 12

Macgregor Scott and Mr. Payne. Wonder what's cooking? They'd better be careful - the place is stiff with Defeatists, from the look of it. Now, Jane Hylton and Joan Dowling catching up with a bunch of friends they haven't seen since last time!

Sc. 16

Bob Godfrey, followed by Charlie Brown and Colonel Theo Fligelstone.

Sc. 17

That's right! Spots for C.J. Latta, here with Bill Fielder and Macgregor Scott! C.J.'s always the life and soul of a party.

Sc. 21

Mr. and Mrs. Singleton and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor. Next we come to that well-known figure, Tom O'Brien.

Sc. 24

Conference President Bill Speakman and Mrs. Speakman (his are followed by Mr. France.

Sc. 26

Lady King and Manny Cold - and how Bill Fielder gets around! He's nearly as 'everywhere' as these chaps we mentioned just now, who keep popping up all over the place - here's another!

3-2058401
Sc. 28

Russell Roberts, Ted Hanscock - and - it's that man again!

Sc. 29

More spots and - blow me! - there he is again greeting Sandra Dorne, with Macgregor Scott! Somebody ought to tell the NDC. England could do with a Fielder like that!

....And don't look now, but I think another one of those chaps is due again...Which leads us to the prologue, a tribute to the Queen ^{in a pageant scene}

Depicting an incident in the life of her Christian ancestor,
Elizabeth I
Sc. 30

Now come members of the Aladdin Ball. Must be a tie-up here somewhere with the Macgregor film which Associated British recommend for Christmas! Or do you believe in fairies?

Sc. 38

This is more like it - hey! They're cutting the scenes much too short! Let's have another look! Thanks!

Sc. 41

Well, isn't anybody going to help the poor girl? Apparently not: they're all dancing as though nothing's happened. Well, let's hope nothing has happened, anyway! Imagine it. After all that terrific hard work they've been doing, they can find the energy to do this, with the mercury outside calling for ice!

Sc. 47

That's one way of taking a girl for a spin. Of course, she has to walk back as usual! But so far, nobody's complaining and everybody seems to be having a gas wonderful time!

Sc. 51

If you recognise anybody, name him! There's such a bunch I can't attempt to pick them out. Besides, it's more fun picking them out yourselves!

Sc. 56

Well, that's the end of the dancing, so on to the prize-giving, and here's Mr. Roberts to receive the first prize in the golf tournament. Do you know, we've heard a lot about the Cinema Exhibitors Association Conference but so far we haven't seen a shot of anybody at work! And here's Mr. Jones collecting the runners-up prize. We used to have pictures of the delegates in full swing on the links. Somehow this year we didn't get around to that. We're not suggesting anything, but after the prize-giving there was - FIREWORKS!

Sc. 73

Piece de Resistance - which doesn't mean an usherette who knows her onions - was a gentleman who just loved to play with fire!

Sc. 76

And so back to the fireworks and the end of a brilliant evening which Llandudno and - we hope - all her important visitors will long remember!