HORSES FOR HELSINKI

At Blackbushe airport, the Olympics special stands by to fly Britain's team for the Prix des Nations to Helsinki. This is Hobbler leaving his box. Star of course is Foxhunter, most famous jumper in the world. And where's there's Foxhunter, there's Colonel Llewellyn. It's a combination that's won Britain fame all over Europe, so here's hoping for Helsinki.

They're travelling well prepared. Colonel Stewart and Mr. White make up the team of three.

The Prix des Nations will be the last event in the stadium before the closing ceremony. What a finish that would be if Foxhunter and his friends pulled it off for Britain!

Meantime at Helsinki they're ready for the Women's 100 metres free style. Angela Barnwell swims for Britain.. And they're off!

They're keeping well together and nobody can say who'll win at this stage.

For Prince Bernhard (with Prince Philip) it's an exciting moment as they approach the finish. Katalin Szoke of Hungary just leads, but Johanna Termulsen of Holland is close up with her. In fact, they're all close up and it's a terrific finish but Katalin Szoke just gets the first touch to win for Hungary.
